An appreciation of the poetry of John Ashbery.

Critics and poets widely acknowledge that American poet John Ashbery (1927-2017) was one of the most important and influential poets of the past 70 years. His first poems were published in Poetry magazine in 1945, when Ashbery was just a teenager, but his name didn't appear next to his poems. Instead, one of his high school classmates took Ashbery's poems and submitted them to the magazine as ...

JOHN ASHBERY in conversation with DAVID REMNICK. Back in 1980, New Yorker editor David Remnick, then an undergraduate at Princeton University, conducted an interview with the poet John Ashbery (1927-2017) for an issue of Bennington Review. Here they talk of Ashbery's (supposed) influences and his interest in surrealism and syntax, as well as the potential risks he saw in confessional poetry.
