According to book, JD 500 was made 1974-75 and made a 5 x 6 bale. I have never used one but I don't think they are nearly as good as the Vermeer 605G. The Vermeer G is an open throat baler that makes 5x6 bales and it can make smaller bales, like 5x5. by just stopping the bale earlier.

Didn't know JD made a 500. Looking thru the parts pages it appears to be much the same as the 510. We used a 410 for about 15 years (same thing as a 510 except smaller). It will bale hay just fine. Won't bale like a "newer" baler or make as tight or heavy of a bale and you can't bale near as fast as "newer" balers, but they do bale hay just the same.
